

Bought with a Price

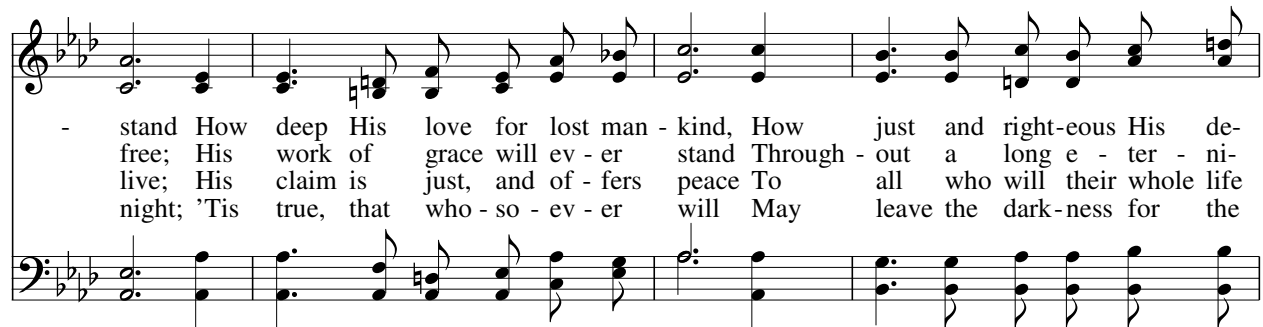

Herbert George Tovey, 1917

Agnes Weeks

$\text{♩} = 100$

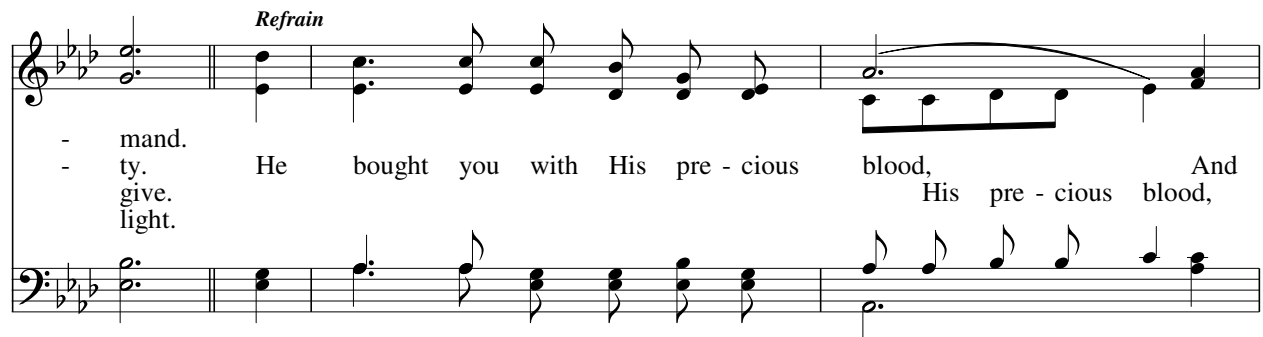

1. The Sav - ior bought you with a price, So great that none can un - der-
2. The Sav - ior bought you with a price, No oth - er one could set you
3. The Sav - ior bought you with a price, And yet, re - fus - ing Him, you 4. Oh, doubt-ing soul, why tar - ry still? The sha - dows length-en in - to

- stand How deep His love for lost man - kind, How just and right-eous His de-free; His work of grace will ev - er stand Through - out a long e - ter - ni-live; His claim is just, and of - fers peace To all who will their whole life night; 'Tis true, that who - so - ev - er will May leave the dark-ness for the

Refrain

- mand.
- ty. He bought you with His pre - cious blood, And give. His pre - cious blood, light.

now He calls you through His Word; The blood-stained path of love He calls through His Word;

trod— Ac - cept Him while His voice is heard.
of love He trod,